THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION.

President McKinley Names Thursday, Nov. 25, as a Day of Prayer.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—President McKinley yesterday issued his first Thanksgiving day proclamation, which in part is as follows:

In remembrance of God's goodness to us during the past year, which has been so abundant, let us offer unto him our thanksgiving and pay our vows unto the most high.

Under his watchful providence industry has prospered, the conditions of labor have been improved, the rewards of husbandman have been increased and the comforts of our homes multiplied. His mighty hand has preserved peace and protected the nation. Respect for law and order has been strengthened, love of free institutions cherished and all sections of our beloved country brought into closer bonds of fraternal regard and generous co-operation.

For these great benefits it is our duty to praise the Lord in a spirit of humility and gratitude and to offer up to him our most earnest supplications. That we may acknowledge our obligation as a people to him who has so graciously granted us the blessings of free government and material prosperity. I, William McKinley, president of the United States, do hereby designate and set apart Thursday, Nov. 25, for national thanksgiving and prayer, which all of the people are invited to observe with appropriate religious services in their respective places of worship.

On this day of rejoicing and domestic reunion let our prayers ascend to the giver of every good and perfect gift for the continuance of his love and favor to us, that our hearts may be filled with charity and good will and that we may be ever worthy of his benevolent concern.

Gone to Ohio.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—President and Mrs. McKinley left Washington last evening for Cincinnati for the Ohio trip which has been planned for several days. Secretary Porter accompanied the president. After stopping in Canton and Pittsburgh the party will return to Washington next Thursday.

GREGORY WILL CONTEST.

Judge Kohlsaat Renders a Decision in Favor of the Common Law Wife.

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—Probate Judge Kohlsaat yesterday rendered his decision in the Gregory will case in favor of the plaintiff, Martha Clybourne. The contest over the $1,000,000 estate of Allen Gregory "Father of the stockyards," which has been in progress several days, proved a sensation. The plaintiff, Martha Clybourne, sought to establish her rights as the widow of Allen Gregory and did so through the evidence given by Mrs. Little Gregory, a niece of the millionaire.

Mrs. Gregory testified that on March 3 last, she performed a common law marriage ceremony uniting her uncle and Mrs. Clybourne, with whom he is said to have lived for 40 years. Upon the death of Gregory the estate was placed in administrator's hands for distribution among 30 odd heirs. Judge Kohlsaat's decision in which he finds Martha Claybourne the legal widow of Allen Gregory and orders new letters of administration, will be fought through the upper courts by these heirs.

SEÑOR DE LOME.

Spanish Minister Confirms Dispatches as to Spain's Answer to Woodford.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Señor Dupuy de Lome, the Spanish minister, yesterday confirmed the tenor of the dispatches regarding Spain's answer to General Woodford's note. Señor de Lome is at the Hotel St. Marc with his family. He was at first disinclined to discuss diplomatic matters at all. Then he added:

"The dispatches have been saying that our answer is most conciliatory, and not likely to produce international friction of any kind, have they not?"

Being answered in the affirmative, Señor de Lome continued: "Well if the press continues to say that, it will find it is right what the correspondence between the two nations is made public."

Postalclerk Arrested For the Crime, Said to Have Confessed.

DENVER, Oct. 30.—Walter Houghton, a postalclerk running from Cheyenne to Ogden, has been arrested on a charge of stealing a registered package containing $14,000. It is said Houghton was confessed by the theft. The package was mailed by a Chicago bank to a correspondent in Sacramento.

Timbers of the Von Storch Coal Mine at Scranton, Pa., Burning.

SCRANTON, Pa., Oct. 30.—Fire broke out early this morning in the main slope of Von Storch mine. An extra force of men was at work timbering in the mine. City firemen are helping to fight the flames, which are burning fiercely.

HENRY GEORGE, JR.

He Succeeds His Father as Candidate For Mayor of Greater New York.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—The executive committee of the Jeffersonian Democracy met at headquarters yesterday afternoon and substituted the name of Henry George, Jr., for that of his father, Henry George, as their candidate for mayor of Greater New York.

Henry George, Jr., was born in Sacramento in 1872. He was educated in the public schools of San Francisco. He was taken from school and put to work in a printing office, and he helped to set type for "Progress and Poverty." He came east with his father in 1880.

In 1888 he went to England as his father's private secretary.

When The Standard was founded by his father he became managing editor of the paper, holding that position until 1891. Then he went to Washington as special correspondent for a number of western papers.

In 1893 he went to Jacksonville, Fla., to assume the news management of The Citizen. Two years afterward he retired to act as his father's secretary.

Body to Lie In State.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—The body of the late Henry George will lie in state tomorrow from sunrise until 7 o'clock in the evening when it will be taken to the city hall in Brooklyn, under escort of labor organizations and other admirers of the singletaxer.

Subscriptions Opened For a Memorial.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—The World has opened a fund for the erection of a memorial to Henry George. Joseph Pulitzer subscribed $1,000; Mayor Strong, $50; Mayor Gleason of Long Island city, $50; Charles Steckler, leader of the Manhattan Democracy, $25.

DIED IN THE HARNESS

Henry George, the Great Single Tax Exponent, Passes Away.

END PEACEFUL AND PAINLESS.

Was the Jeffersonian Democracy's Candidate for Mayor of Greater New York Terrible Strain of the Campaign Brought on Apoplexy—His Son Succeeds Him on the Ticket.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Henry George, author of "Progress and Poverty" and candidate of the Thomas Jefferson Democracy for mayor of New York, died yesterday in the Union Square hotel of cerebral apoplexy.

In his great Cooper Union speech accepting the nomination for mayor, less than a month ago, he said:

"I'll make this race if it costs me my life. This is a call to duty and as a good citizen I have no right to disregard it on account of mere personal consideration."

The cheers of the workers have changed to sighs, for, true to his word Henry George, the apostle of the rights of man, died as he wished to die—in the peaceful and painless manner in which he had chosen to die.

HENRY GEORGE, JR., can take his father's place on the ticket as candidate for mayor of Greater New York, but he can not command his following.

The professional fault-finders are not finding the welcome ears that they did last fall. People are too busy now to listen to complaints that they know are not founded on fact, and they are suspicious of men who offered them a theory which would not hold good even for one year.

The petty spite of petty politicians has had more weight with Mayor Taggart than the public good and the opinion of the representative physicians of all parties and schools of the city.—Indianapolis News.

Yet the News gave its entire support to this man Taggart who is influenced more by the "petty politicians" than by the public good.

THE statement of Comptroller Eckels of the United States Treasury in regard to the business movement throughout the country is very encouraging. He states that "the improvement has come rapidly and permeates all line of industry. It began with the agricultural class. The farmers have large crops and are getting good prices for them. The cattle-raisers are benefited by a substantial rise in the price of cattle. The same is true with the sheep-raisers. This improvement in agricultural earnings has had its effect on the railroads by increasing their earnings. It has put people to pay off their debts, and has thereby benefited the merchants."

FOR UNLAWFUL ASSEMBLAGE.

Thirty-five Striking Miners Arrested Near Dearmunt's Mines.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 30.—Thirty-five striking miners have been arrested near the Oak Hill mines of the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company, charged with unlawful assemblage at Turtle creek. They were preparing to make a demonstration, but the deputies intercepted them and arrested the entire party. There was no violence and the procession, after the arrests, headed by the deputies and followed by Superintendent T. B. Dearmunt, was marched to Turtle creek. The men were later brought to Pittsburgh, where charges of unlawful assemblage were entered against them.

After meals you should have simply a feeling of comfort and satisfaction.

You should not feel any special indications that digestion is going on. If you do, you have indigestion, which means not-digestion. This may be the beginning of so many dangerous diseases that it is best to take it in hand at once and treat it with Shaker Digestive Cordial. For you know that indigestion makes poison, which causes pain and sickness. And that Shaker Digestive Cordial helps digestion. Shaker Digestive Cordial does this by providing the digestive materials in which the sick stomach is wanting. It also tones up and strengthens the digestive organs and makes them perfectly healthy. This is the rationale of its method of cure, as the doctors would say. Sold by druggists, price 10 cents to $1.00 per bottle.

What Was Said Last Winter.

On December 16, 1896, the poet actor Donald Robertson and the eminent actress Miss Bradon Douglas appeared at the opera house presenting the four act romantic tragedy, "The Man in the Iron Mask." The REPUBLICAN of December 17, the following evening said:

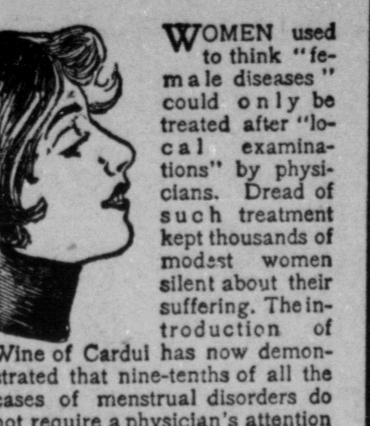

"A good performance. 'The Man in the Iron Mask,' as presented in the opera house last night was a very creditable performance. It was by far the best attraction booked here so far during the season. The leading parts played by Donald Robertson and Miss Bradon Douglas were well done. All members of the company are good performers."

It gives us pleasure to inform our amusement lovers that this company is to appear here again on Tuesday evening, next, Nov. 2.

Cox.

The Presbyterian Household.

In his response to the welcoming address last evening the Rev. Charlton compared the church to the ideal home and the analogy which he described as desirable was in fact being then happily realized. The children and youth were there the circle was complete, the gentle words and charming music gave appropriate expression to the melody of the occasion. The rooms had been set in order with loving forethought and admirable taste, branches of the beautiful autumn leaves supplemented the conservatory in decoration. Arrangements would not have been complete without the tempting aroma of the delicious Java in the adjoining room.

The strong words of welcome to the pastor by Mr. Masters found earnest response in the hearts of all, by his own words the pastor still further endeared himself to people, and the presence and remarks of Rev. Mr. Clevenger were duly appreciated.

DISMISSING A WEAKLING.

The Poor Fout Could Not See That He Had Her Won.

Reginald Hanscomb stopped in the hall and nervously fumbled at the rim of his hat, meanwhile gazing into Pocahontas Poindexter's eyes with a fondness that the beautiful girl could not mistake.

He opened his lips as if about to speak, but the words that he sought to utter would not come, and the fair maiden gave a low, sweet sigh that was calculated to fill his heart with blushing.

Yet he stood there, and she stood in front of him, looking and longing and wondering why he hesitated.

Once she was almost tempted to take him back into the parlor and tell him that it was all right; that she knew how he felt about it, and that she would just take it for granted without the usual formality. But her maiden modesty rose in rebellion, and she said to herself:

"No. If he is too timid, too cowardly, to say the words, it will perhaps be better for us both if we take diverging ways."

Then, speaking aloud, she said:

"Well, good night, Mr. Hanscomb, if you must be going."

"Well, good night," he said. "I guess I must be going."

"Well, good night," she said again, holding the door open for him.

She shut the door with a bang and sat down upon the stairway and buried her face in her hands and sobbed.

But half a minute later she heard him returning. Her heart gave a glad leap, and she rushed to the door to admit him.

He stood looking down into her sweet, expectant face for a moment after the door had swung back, and then, clearing his throat, he said:

"Some pesky kid punctured my tire while I was inside. I wonder if I could borrow your mending outfit for about two minutes?"

"No," she replied. "My repairing outfit is up in the attic, and I can't find it tonight. Walk home. It'll do you good."

Then she slammed the door in his face, and he tried to think—poor fool—as he wended his way homeward, what he had done to offend her.—Cleveland Leader.

Lady Dufferin, in her amusing book, "Viceroyal Life In India," gives some good examples of "baboo" English. One of the natives was told to write an essay on the horse in an examination, and this was the result: "The horse is a very noble animal, but when irritated ceases to do so."

A common mistake of some local advertisers is to estimate the value of advertising space of one newspaper by the amount asked by some other publication. It is a mistake of judgment for a business man to estimate the value of space in a reputable paper with a good circulation by that of some other publication which will accept business at any price and be pleased to get it.

SUFFERINGS AT THE FRONT.

Terrible Scenes That Followed the Battle of Cold Harbor.

General Horace Porter, in "Campaigning With Grant," in the Century, telling of the battle of Cold Harbor, says:

The general in chief realized that he was in a swampy and sickly portion of the country. The malaria was highly productive of disease, and the Chickahominy fever was dredged by all the troops who had a recollection of its ravages when they campaigned in that section of the country two years before. The operations had been so active that precautions against sickness had necessarily been much neglected, and the general was anxious, while giving the men some rest, to improve the sanitary conditions. By dint of extraordinary exertions the camps were well policed and large quantities of fresh vegetables were brought forward and distributed. Cattle were received in much better condition than those which had made long marches and had furnished beef which was far from being wholesome. Greater attention was demanded in the cooking of the food and the procuring of better water. Dead animals and offal were buried, and more stringent sanitary regulations were enforced throughout the entire command.

What was most distressing at this time was the condition of affairs at the extreme front. No one who did not witness the sights on those portions of the line where the opposing troops were in exceptionally close contact can form an idea of the sufferings experienced.

Staff officers used to work their way on foot daily to the advanced points, so as to be able to report with accuracy these harrowing scenes. Some of the sights were not unlike those of the "bloody angle" at Spotsylvania. Between the lines where the heavy assault had been made there was in some places a distance of 30 or 40 yards completely covered by the dead and wounded of both sides. The bodies of dead were festering in the sun, while the wounded were dying a torturing death from starvation, thirst and loss of blood. In some places the stench became sickening. Every attempt to make a change in the picket line brought on heavy firing, as both sides had become nervous from long watchfulness, and the slightest movement on either front led to the belief that it was the beginning of an assault. In the night there was often heavy artillery firing, sometimes accompanied by musketry, with a view to deterring the other side from attacking, or occasioned by false rumors of an attempt to assault. The men on the advanced lines had to lie close to the ground in narrow trenches, with little water for drinking purposes except that obtained from surface drainage. They were subjected to the broiling heat by day and the chilling winds and fogs at night and had to eat the rations that could be got to them under the greatest imaginable discomfort.

Seymour REPUBLICAN.

John R. McLean's Great Newspaper. Without a single exception, there is no greater or more popular newspaper in the United States than the Cincinnati Enquirer; and a more successful publisher than its proprietor, Mr. John R. McLean.

The old-time prices for the Daily Enquirer have been maintained, and its circulation largely increased each year; hard times and cheaper journals failing to arrest its onward march and high appreciation of the public by its true worth and merit.

The Weekly Enquirer at beginning of the campaign year was offered at 50 cents a year, and its circulation increased by the addition of over 200,000 new subscribers; the most substantial and coveted testimonial a publisher could desire.

When asked for the secret of such success, Mr. McLean frankly answers: The Enquirer has no opinions to force upon its patrons, it simply prints the facts and tells the truth that the reader may form his own opinions. By maintaining the price of the paper, more news and greater variety can be furnished, and every class of business interests catered to without a cheaper journal cannot afford.

The very liberal scope given the Enquirer by the public at large, makes it a success in the management to serve it faithfully with zeal and enterprise in minor matters as well as of greater magnitude.

Kaiser and Painter.

There was a touching exchange of compliments the other day between Emperor William and the Russian painter Vereschagin, whose works are now on exhibition in Berlin. The kaiser went to the gallery and was gracious enough to remind the artist that they had met before. "Yes, your majesty," replied Vereschagin, "and then you were only 'highness,' but now you are 'majesty.' To this the kaiser is said to have replied, holding out his hand. "And you who were a great painter then, are now a greater one."

It is not altogether surprising that the Russian is reported as expressing deep respect for the emperor's critical powers, for he quotes, as showing limitless historical knowledge, the emperor's declaration, made at this momentous interview, that "if ever a judgment of God broke over a man, it was over Napoleon at Moscow." Meanwhile Vereschagin's pictures will continue to reveal the horrors of militarism, and thus supply one with the pleasant mental recreation of wondering what Europe's one real war lord can see to admire in them.—New York Times.

Hark! How the great, old ocean day and night Breaks on you giant rocks as on a throne That towers in silent night! In one long, plaintive, awful monotone!

Unanswering ever towers the giant rock Amid the centuries that come and go, As if 'twould only mock The eternal voice that wailed and wailed below!

Tis thus, O God, the deep sea of my soul Breaks ever on the foot of thy great throne, It dreads but only goal, In one long, plaintive, awful monotone!

HENRY GEORGE, JR., can take his father's place on the ticket as candidate for mayor of Greater New York, but he can not command his following.

THE professional fault-finders are not finding the welcome ears that they did last fall. People are too busy now to listen to complaints that they know are not founded on fact, and they are suspicious of men who offered them a theory which would not hold good even for one year.

The petty spite of petty politicians has had more weight with Mayor Taggart than the public good and the opinion of the representative physicians of all parties and schools of the city.—Indiana-apolis News.

Yet the News gave its entire support to this man Taggart who is influenced more by the "petty politicians" than by the public good.

THE statement of Comptroller Eckels of the United States Treasury in regard to the business pro-vement throughout the country is very encouraging. He states that "the im-provement has come rapidly and permeates all line of industry. It began with the agricultural class. The farmers have large crops and are getting good prices for them. The cattle-raisers are benefited by a substantial rise in the price of cattle. The same is true with the sheep-raisers. This improvement in agricultural earnings has had its effect on the railroads by increasing their earnings. It has put money into circulation and enabled people to pay off their debts, and has thereby benefited the mer-chants."

FOR UNLAWFUL ASSEMBLAGE.

Thirty-five Striking Miners Arrested Near Dearmunt's Mines.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 30.—Thirty-five strik-ing miners have been arrested near the Oak Hill mines of the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company, charged with unlawful assemblage at Turtle creek. They were preparing to make a demonstration, but the deputies inter-cepted them and arrested the entire party. There was no violence and the procession, after the arrests, headed by the deputies and followed by Superin-tendent T. B. Dearmunt, was marched to Turtle creek. The men were later brought to Pittsburgh, where charges of unlawful assemblage were entered against them.

Cox.

The Presbyterian Household.

In his response to the welcoming address last evening the Rev. Charlton compared the church to the ideal home and the analogy which he described as desirable was in fact being then happily realized. The children and youth were there the circle was complete, the gentle words and charming music gave appropriate expression to the melody of the occasion. The rooms had been set in order with loving forethought and admirable taste, branches of the beautiful autumn leaves supplemented the conservatory in decoration. Arrangements would not have been complete without the tempting aroma of the delicious Java in the adjoining room.

The strong words of welcome to the pastor by Mr. Masters found earnest response in the hearts of all, by his own words the pastor still further endeared himself to people, and the presence and remarks of Rev. Mr. Clevenger were duly appreciated.

DISMISSING A WEAKLING.

The Poor Fool Could Not See That He Had Her Won.

Reginald Hanscomb, stopped in the hall and nervously fumbled at the rim of his hat, meanwhile gazing into Pocahontas Poindexter's eyes with a fondness that the beautiful girl could not mistake.

He opened his lips as if about to speak, but the words that he sought to utter would not come, and the fair maiden gave a low, sweet sigh that was calculated to fill his heart with blawholes.

Yet he stood there, and she stood in front of him, looking and longing and wondering why he hesitated.

Once she was almost tempted to take him back into the parlor and tell him that it was all right; that she knew how he felt about it, and that she would just take it for granted without the usual formality. But her maiden modesty rose in rebellion, and she said to herself:

"No. If he is too timid, too cowardly, to say the words, it will perhaps be better for us both if we take diverging ways."

Then, speaking aloud, she said:

"Well, good night, Mr. Hanscomb, if you must be going."

"Well, good night," he said. "I guess I must be going."

"Well, good night," she said again, holding the door open for him.

"Well, good night," he said, passing out through the vestibule.

She shut the door with a bang and sat down upon the stairway and buried her face in her hands and sobbed.

But half a minute later she heard him returning. Her heart gave a glad leap, and she rushed to the door to admit him.

He stood looking down into her sweet, expectant face for a moment after the door had swung back, and then, clearing his throat, he said:

"Some pesky kid punctured my tire while I was inside. I wonder if I could borrow your mending outfit for about two minutes?"

"No," she replied. "My repairing outfit is in the attic, and I can't find it tonight. Walk home. I'll do you good."

Then she slammed the door in his face, and he tried to think—poor fool—as he wended his way homeward, what he had done to offend her.—Cleveland Leader.

Lady Dufferin, in her amusing book, "Viceroyal Life in India," gives some good examples of "baboo" English. One of the natives was told to write an essay on the horse in an examination, and this was the result: "The horse is a very noble animal, but when irritated ceases to do so."

The nest and eggs of Pallas' gray shrike (Lanius major) are said to be still unknown to science.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

A common mistake of some local advertisers is to estimate the value of advertising space of one newspaper by the amount asked by some other publication. It is a mistake of judgment for a business man to estimate the value of space in a reputable paper with a good circulation by that of some other publication which will accept business at any price and be pleased to get it.

SUFFERINGS AT THE FRONT.

Terrible Scenes That Followed the Battle of Cold Harbor.

General Horace Porter, in "Campaigning With Grant," in the Century, telling of the battle of Cold Harbor, says:

The general in chief realized that he was in a swampy and sickly portion of the country. The malaria was highly productive of disease, and the Chickahominy fever was dreaded by all the troops who had a recollection of its ravages when they campaigned in that section of the country two years before. The operations had been so active that precautions against sickness had necessarily been much neglected, and the general was anxious, while giving the men some rest, to improve the sanitary conditions. By dint of extraordinary exertions the camps were well policed and large quantities of fresh vegetables were brought forward and distributed. Cattle were received in much better condition than those which had made long marches and had furnished beef which was far from being wholesome. Greater attention was demanded in the cooking of the food and the procuring of better water. Dead animals and offal were buried, and more stringent sanitary regulations were enforced throughout the entire command.

What was most distressing at this time was the condition of affairs at the extreme front. No one who did not witness the sights on those portions of the line where the opposing troops were in exceptionally close contact can form an idea of the sufferings experienced. Staff officers used to work their way on foot daily to the advanced points, so as to be able to report with accuracy these harrowing scenes. Some of the sights were not unlike those of the "bloody angle" at Spotsylvania. Between the lines where the heavy assaults had been made there was in some places a distance of 30 or 40 yards completely covered by the dead and wounded of both sides. The bodies of dead were festering in the sun, while the wounded were dying a torturing death from starvation, thirst and loss of blood. In some places the stench became sickening. Every attempt to make a change in the picket line brought on heavy firing, as both sides had become nervous from long watchfulness, and the slightest movement on either front led to the belief that it was the beginning of an assault. In the night there was often heavy artillery firing, sometimes accompanied by musketry, with a view to determining the other side from attacking, or occasioned by false rumors of an attempt to assault. The men on the advanced lines had to lie close to the ground in narrow trenches, with little water for drinking purposes except that obtained from surface drainage. They were subjected to the broiling heat by day and the chilling winds and fogs at night and had to eat the rations that could be got to them under the greatest imaginable discomfort.
